"This will make every State and District show its hand. Then we can find out just where we stand.

"If the committee puts a straight out gold plank in the platform we will make a minority report, and get a vote by States in the convention."

Senator Dubois tilked the same way. He said the question of a bolt would come up later—after the convention has refused to give recognition to silver.

The announcement of the formation of the above firm will, it is said, effectually answer the question regarding fourth nomination. It may be that this is those who have so anxiously demanded to know the course he is to pursue. The announcement will, too, demonstrate Secretary Carlisle's intentions for the future. One incident that gives a bit of color to this remarkable rumor is that Speaker Read made frequent calls at the White House before the adjournment of Congress. Before his last nomination for the Presidency. Mr. Cleveland was a member of a prominent law firm of this city. Two things concerning that partnership are known. The first is Mr. Cleveland surprised all whom the first is Mr. Cleveland surprised all who came into contact with him by his intimate and intricate knowledge of law. The second is that the partnership proved lucrative to all connected with it. It was stated many weeks ago that Mr. Reed would, should he fail in his political aspiration, refuse a renomination for Congress and refuse a renomination for Congress and refuse a renomination for Congress and refuse a renomination for Congress concerning law. NEGRO DELEGATES WILL DECIDE THE FINANCIAL QUESTION.

MERELY A MATTER OF BOODLE.

Senator Lodge Will Make a Big Fight for Gold and Hanna May Open a Bar'l,

On the eve of the great contest which is the eve of the great coatest which is to end in the triumphant nomination of William McKinley as the standard bearer of the Republican party this year, a black shadow looms portente sty ahead of Mark Hanna.

The flush of victory over position to McKinley pales beneath the cloud which carries the financial cyclors. The Cleveland dictator who has swept away as chaff in his path all the big mya of the party, admits that he cannot need off the big fight between the East and the rest of the coun-try on the words of the financial plank. The Committee on Platform will also be unable to placate the elements. On the floor of the convention hall the fight will wage sliver or "bimetallism," and has vainly exhausted his nervous energy in a desperate effort to reach a compromise.

The Sabbath day was profaned by the nen who are formulating the platform, and all day Monday the fight was waged, with only a partial understanding being eached.

It is agreed now that the contest over the wording of the money plank shall first be fought out in the committee. There Hanna will win. The committee will report a "sound money" plank without specific mention of gold.

To the convention it will be brought. The silver advocates, led by Senator Teller, will present a substitute, asking for the free colnage of silver at 16 to 1. This will be voted down.

Then Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, the brilliant Massachusetts statesman, will rally the men of gold about the yellow standard. Supported by the extreme silver men and all the gold men, he will make the light of his career for the substitution of the words "gold standard" for the Hanna had exhausted his resources in attempting to secure peace. He is dubious of the outcome, although boldly asserting that Monday's recapitulation of the delegate canvass gives 550 delegates who will stand by the McKinley "bimetallism" straddle.

To-day Hanna is busy arranging to put in Senator-elect J. B. Foraker of Ohio as Chairman of the Platform Committee. Senator Lodge, the candidate of the gold men, refused to make terms, and Hanna sent out word to defeat him.

That the sound money bimetaille straddle fill have a majority of the members on the latform Committee admits of little doubt fanns has that well in hand. The patriarch of the convention is the venerable Richard W. Thompson of Indiana, Secretary of the Navy under Hayes.

He has seen four score and six years, but, as he puts it, "is right in the swim yet." He will be the Chairman of his delegation, and will probably make one of the speeches seconding McKinley's nomination. He is accumpanied by a colored valet, who looks after him wherever he goes, but the old man mingles with the crowd so freely, no one would ever suspect that he had an attendant, or would judge from his still rotund face and form that he had so nearly approached the century mark.

"I have been in politics since 1832," said Mr. Thompson, "and during 64 eventful years I have held many positione, from the Cabinet down to county offices. I have, however, refused more public positions than I have been inclined to accept.

Senator Ingalls was seen, and when told of his boom was apparently much surprised.

"It is rumored, Senator, that you are a candidate for the Senate from Kansas since I was defeated, and I have been a candidate for the Senate from Kansas since I was defeated, and I have nothing else in view now. I regard the chances for my return to the Senate as being very favorable."

"Would you accept second place on the McKinley ticket?"

"You must excuse me if I refuse to discuss the matter."

Heavy Work Done by the Committee in Seating Delegations to Suit the McKinley Management.

The Republican National Committee has under consideration to-day the resolution offered by Mr. Payne of Wisconsin providing for a change of the basis of representa-tion in the National Convention. Mr. Payne had amended the resolution since first pre-pared. As presented it was as follows:

"Resolved, That the National Committee recommend to the convention that here-after the basis of representation from the several States shall be fixed at four delegates at large and one additional delegate for each 7,000 votes or majority fraction thereof, cast in each State for the Repub-lican electoral ticket at the last preceding election, and that each Territory and the election, and that each Territory and the District of Columbia be entitled to six delegates and that the delegates be apportioned to the several Congressional districts of each State upon the same basis."

Mr. Payne made a speech in support of the amendment saying that the States which cast Republican votes should have an increased representation at the conventions, and that the representation ought to be on the basis of Republican votes.

"If," he said, "Nevada casts 25,000 Republican votes and Mississippi, for instance, casts the same number, Nevada should have the same representation in Congress that

Gen. Harrison could not have secured the nomination.

Ex-Senator Carey of Wyoming opposed the resolution on the ground that it would give the large States an undue influence in national affairs.

At the conclusion of the debate Mr. Clayton of Arkansas offered a resolution as a substitute for all motions and amendments to the effect that the committee shall disclaim jurisdiction to make any such recomendation to the National Convention. At the request of Mr. Fessenden of Connecticut the resolution was modified to read:

"That this committee deem it inexpedient to make any recommendation whatever to the National Convention on this subject." The resolution as modified was adopted by a yea and nay vote, Si to 4.

of a preliminary contest to a great convention.

In the Twelfth District the Platt men were Howard 'Carroll and Thurlow Weed Barnes, and the McKinleyites were Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer of the National Republican Committee, and Col. S. V. R. Cruger. After a two hours' fight the committee decided to give each of the delegates half a vote each.

Platt fought just as hard in the Thirteenth District, but received a black eye when his ancient enemy, William G. Brookfield, Chairman of the New York County Central Committee, along with Gen. Amon G McCook, was seated.

The Platt delegates were John Reisenweber and Alexander T. Mason.

In the Tenth District Platt was again knocked out, and McKinley, boosted by the seating of Gen. C. H. T. Collis and Robert J. Wright, over Joseph Murray and David Friedsam.

The one-armed leader of Arkansas is one of the shrewdest politicians in the country and has a persuasive manner that is hard to resist. He told the Missouri delegates whenever he could find one that Kerens was much closer to McKinley than Filley ever could get, and that it would be good policy to re-elect the present National Committeeman.

Just before midnight Maj, Warner and Kerens, after a long consultation, left the Nebraska has a man for the consultation of the content of the country and has been delarmed upon the re-elect the present National Committeeman.

Just before midnight Maj. Warner and Kerens, after a long consultation, left the Southern together. It was then given out that Maj. Warner would go to Kerens after the first ballot.

At Fulley's headquarters all was activity and the leading supporters of "De Ole Man" could hot conceal their alarm. The hopeful air that was present all day Saturday had vanished and the leaders looked frightened as if in the shadow of impending doom. The workers were active, however, and they hauled in a delegate every time they could lay hands on him.

The untiring lieutenants were Collector Ziegenhein, Amades Cole, Councilmen Horton, Clark and Uthoff, F. B. Brownell, Tom Niedringhaus, Harry Clover, Coroner Wait, Lee Phillips, Inspector of Weights and Measures Lyons, Julius Wursburger, Secretary Abert Griffen of the State Committee, Charley Schweickhardt, L. were it not that he considered it wrong to gamble.

Early Monday morning he gave it out that there would be more than one ballot. The first ballot, he said, would give Kerans is, Filley is and Warner 4, and that on the second the Warner support would go to Kerans, giving him more than enough to elect. Stories of boodle in the Missouri National Committee fight were the order at the Planters and Southern Monday morning. The Filley managers claimed that Kerens had opened a barrel to capture wavering delegates, and the Kerens leaders told similar stories of the Filley people. The utmost bitterness prevailed among the factionists, and the thoroughly fatigued leaders worked desperately for delegates, and never ceased to claim victory for their respective choices.

The experience of Col. Jim Davis when he arrived at Union Station Monday is a fair illustration of the determination displayed by the leaders. Davis halls from the faatnesses of the Ozarks and had to stage it forty miles before he reached a railroad station. He is a delegate and both sides claimed his vots.

At Springfield Davis took the Frisco train and, feeling very tired after his long journey from Taney County, lost no time getting into his berth.

At Newburg, a point half way between St. Louis and Sprinfield, the incoming and outgoing train was Senator Gus Wurdeman, going train was Senator Gus Wurdeman,

NEW BOSS AND THE PUSH.

MARCUS AURELIUS HANNA IS THE BIGGEST MAN IN TOWN.

IS BESIEGED ON ALL SIDES.

McKinley's . Brainy Manager Sits Calmly in His Room Directing the Ohio Man's Affairs.

The Monday crush in Ohio headquarters was terrific. Marcus Aurelius Hanna, su-was terrific. Marcus Aurelius Hanna, supreme dictator, was the center of attraction. Delegates and men of influence in their respective States almost fought for the privilege of getting to him. Governors of States, delegates-at-large, belated McKinley men, colored delegates hoping for something, wire-pullers from everywhere joined in the struggling throng.

Behind doors double locked Mark Hanna worked tirelessly perfecting details of the McKinley battle lines. Occasionally the door was opened to admit an important personage or a runner bearing the latest information of the evening's movements. Gen. Charles H. Grosvenor, Gov. Bushnell, Gen. Foraker, National Committeeman Hahn and a host of lesser McKinley lights aided Hanna in the early morning hours.

As the crush grew and all of Ohio, with representatives of large silces of the rest of the McKinley world, clamored for admission and threatened congestion in the corridors leading to McKinley headquarters, the necessity of the occasion forced a change of operations.

tions.

The McKinley managers divided. Mark Hanna was left to complete the strategic moves on distinct lines.

To Congressman Grosvenor and Governor Bushnell was given supervision of the work of lining up McKinley delegates. In a private parior down the corridor from Ohio headquarters they me Chairmen of delegations, and in case of refractory or recalcitrant delegates, had them brought personally before them.

citrant delegates, had them orought person-ally before them.

There the list of solid McKinley men was gome over and every delegate tabbed. A complete set of books was kept, so that when the convention is called to order Han-na may walk down the aisles, put his finger, on a man here and one there, and say with absolute confidence in the result, "These are all mine."

In his private room the Cleveland boss had before him only those who could give direct information as to the move of the op-position and could render effective service in checkmating them.

position and could render effective service in cheekmating them.

Foreker was with him part of the time and so was Hahn. Thurston sent important tips to him now and then.

While the crowd outside struggled, perspired and yelled, Hanna sat at his deak calmix planning.

The new boss is apparently tireless. Other men who have not been here half as long, nor experienced one-tenth the tremendous pressure, look wan and hollow-eyed. He is alert, fresh looking, wide-awake.

Senator Quay had a trusted messenger making occasional trips to Hanna's private room. Once Edward Lauterbach, Platts trusted lieutenant, came as far as the entry room. When he got caught in the orush he scowled savagely into his black beard and retreated.

The picture in the outer room was a curi-room. When he got caught in the orden he scowied savagely into his black beard and retreated.

The picture in the outer room was a curicus patchwork of convention odds and ends. A significant feature of the early morning procession was the number of men who wore on their breasts the badges of Reed, of Morton and of Allison.

Almost without exception they got behind the doors, while delegates with McKinley badges fought for standing room outside.

Once word was brought to Hanna's head-querters that Indiana had decided to put den. Lew Wallace on the Committee on Resolutions. Hanna knew Gen. Wallace was for gold. Other business was temporarily suspended until the McKinley manager was given the positive assurance that if Gen. Wallace did go on the Platform Committee he would forego his views and work for "sound money" as a companie.

Near the noon hour, when the McKinley manine had been gone over carefully and was ascertained to be in perfect condition, Hanna gave audience to Gov. Bradley of Kentucky. Bradley's "withdrawal" from the Presidential race, in which he was a quarter horse competing with thoroughbreds, was a humorous feature which Mr. Hanna seemed to enjoy.

He took occasion to make sure of Kentucky's vote, however, and the informal conference with Bradley seemed to satisfy him on that point.

After moving the men on the checker board. Tabulators Grosvenor, Hahn and Bushnell raised the limit on McKinley's vote on the first ballot to 650, with a possible break in unexpected quarters that might swell the total.

Not until he had received word direct from the conference of gold men that they were going to attempt to insert "gold" in the platform by the aid of men from the Southern did Hanna play his best card of the day. He sent out word to the Southern delegations to pass in review. They came down the line in almost alphabetical order. After this, Hanna took a brief rest and reviewed the situation.

There seemed little more to do. The general lines were in good condition. Besides holding his own he had made important accessions which promised spiendid results.

He eliminated from consideration Platt, Lodge, Telier, Dubois, Mantle and Cannon-leaders of gold and silver, and dealt only with the proposition that he could command enough McKniev partisans to force the big convention.

"I am here," said he, "not as a delegate to the convention, but to exert what influence I may possess toward holding the Republic-sn party to fidelity to its two great funda-mental principles, bimetallism and protec-tion, and, so far as in me les, to prevent the betrayal of the 'grand old party' into the measures spread by Wall street and Lombard street. And I am here to protest against the Republican party's following the leadership of Grover Cleveland into the gold standard camp."

Prominent Populists will be thick in St.

No meeting of the National Committee

He says that the leaders of the People's party came to St. Louis simply as onlookers of a great convention which interests them equally as it does all other citizens. They talk politics as a matter of course, but they have made no arrangements to confer with any other political crowd of any kind.

A moore of the advance guard of distinguished Popullists arrived Monday. Among them were: Gen. J. B. Weaver, the standard-bearer of the party in the last presidential campaign; Reuben F. Kolb, the candidate for Governor of talabama in 1894; J. H. (Cyclone) Davis of Texas; M. C. Rankin, Treasurer of the National Executive Committee: Senator Marion Butler of North Carolina; J. N. To-morrow Ignatius Donnelly, whose draft of plaiform was adopted at Omaha without change, will arrive and Senator Allen of Nebraska and Thomas Patterson, editor of the Denver News, are expected.

The visitors are scattered about the city, but it is not improbable that they will get together at some point for an hour or two at least. Despite the declaration of Chairman Taubeneck that the gathering will not efforts to keep the arrival of the Populist leaders secret indicate the contrary.

MILLER TRIES TO DOWN HIM AS CHAIRMAN OF DELEGATION.

CAUCUS WAS ADJOURNED.

Platt's Friends Denounced the Herkimer McKinleyite as a Chronic Kicker and Political Outcast.

The meeting of the New York delegation at 11 o'clock this morning ended in a row as the result of an effort to retire Platt from control. Warner Miller was responsible for it. He delivered a studied insult to the boss by moving to substitute the name of Chauncey M. Depew in place of Plast for Chairman of the delegation, and the surprise was so great that the Platt adherents were forced to take a recess until 3 o'clock this afternoon in order to marshal their forces.

When the delegation was called to order it was understood that Chuncey M. Depew was to be named as chairman of the caucus and that Mr. Platt was to be selected as chairman of the delegation. There was not the shadow of a suspicion that there would be any opposition. But Warner Miller had been in conference all morning with the McKinley managers and with Mr. Matthews of Buffalo, and when the double proposition was made he was op his feet in an instant. "I move, Mr. Chairman, that the name of Mr. Depew be substituted for that of Mr. Platt," he said.

Surprise was written on all faces and even Mr. Depew seemed taken aback.

"I did this because the most distinguished man en this delegation has been entirely neglected," said Mr. Miller.

There were cries of "No," and a motion was at once made to divide the question. Mr. Depew sat then selected as Chairman of the caucus by a unanimous vote. The question was put as to the selection of Mr. Platt for the delegation and Mr. Miller renewed his resolution to substitute Mr. Dopew's name. Mr. Depew sat slient and Congressman Quierg, in opposing the substitution, attacked Mr. Miller in a vigorous and most vidous manner. He said in part:

"Mr. Miller knows that Mr. Platt and Mr. Depew are at this time working in harmony and he takes this peanut politician chance to try and make discord. This body will not sustain one whose attitude toward the instructions of the last Republican convention in New York is open to doubt and suspicion."

"More than 300,000 railroad employes in the United States, a majority of whom are members of organized bodies representing their different callings, demand that a plank be inserted in the platform of the Republican party, indorsing national arbitration of differences that may arise between employer and employe engaged in interstate commerce. We believe the public desires it. We are sure that railroad employes want it, and we know of no one who opposes it. "We deplore strikes and strife, and urge that all means possible be employed to bring about an amicable settlement of disputes by arbitration. We believe the bill now pending in the National House of Representatives and known as the Erdman Arbitration Bill is a long stride in this direction, and we sak the support of the convention in having this measure made a law."

CAPTAIN CAUGHT A TARTAR A Patriot Who Loves Whisky and th Colored Brother.

Colored Brother.

They call him "Captain," but that does not signify much in a crowd where all are captains, majors and colonels. He is well dressed and has a prosperous bearing that well becomes his fifty odd years of life.

He has two evident weaknesses and these he has taken no pains to conceal in the week that he has been around the corridors of the Southern.

The first is a fondness for whisky and he has kept more than his share aboard, but this may have been due to fear that the supply would give out this coming week. His second particular delight is the colored brother and he spends the entire day and much of the night telling some one or another of the ebony-hued delegates just how his heart beats for the race. His mode of attack is original.

A colored delegate is seen in the distance. The Captain rmiles a knowing smile which acts very well as a skirmish line. The colored brother sees this expression of beattude and if he acknowledges it he is gone for an hour or more.

The Captain then sails up to the unprotected wictim and throws his grappling hooks aboard, driving them in with a sledge. They clasp their right hands and the Captain throws his left around Rastus' neck and leads him gently to the bar. After the proper devotions have ben gone through with the circus begins.

The Captain seizes both shoulders of the poor sufferer and whispers in his right ear. This lasts two minutes by the watch.

Then he holds him out at arms' length and winks at him. Next on the programme is a powerful poke in the ribs and they both laugh.

Again they come to close quarters but this time is it is the left ear that is reached and powerful poke in the ribs and they both laugh.

Again they come to close quarters but this time it is the left ear that is reached and the same events follow precisely except that the colored brother does not laugh so heartily after this poke in the ribs.

This is kept up until the Captain becomes weary and releases his helpless captive except in occasional instances when there is a variation.

This occurred this morning when the Captain caught a Tartar, who soon sized up the situation and realised that he must work out his own salvation.

He did. Every time the Captain poked him he countered with his right and followed with his left and the Captain threw up the sponge and retired to his room.

M'KINLEY LAW IS DEAD.

nator Foraker Says It Will Never Be Re-Enacted.

Joseph Benson Foraker is talking in a funny way. He is proclaiming from the housetops that tariff will not be the issue of the campaign and that the Republican party will make no effort to bring about a recrudescence of McKinleyism.

The Senator-elect thus leaves the man whom he is going to eulogize in the convention for President of the United States nothing to stand on.

McKinleyism was alleged to be the vital force-that was pushing the Canton Major to the front, up to a very few weeks ago. Now that it is being ignored by all of the Major's managers it seems that he is being ruthlessly separated from the one and sole idea that made him a factor in the Presidential fight.

Senator Foraker said to a Post-Dispatch reporter: "Of course we will have a tariff plank in our platform, but it will merely be a declaration in favor of protection to American industries and American labor. That, though, will not mean a demand for the re-enactment of the McKinley law. That law will never be re-enacted."

If he can control these delegates for gold

If he can control these delegates for gold despite the influence of the McKinley straddlers perhaps before the final vote comes he can switch them from their sliegiance to the mighty Hanna and yet turn defeat into victory.

The switch of the negro delegates practically settles the financial question. There are nearly 100 of them, almost all from the South, and almost all for McKinley.

Without them Hanna cannot dictate the wording of the financial plank, and he will have to admit that the finesse of the New York statesman on this point, at least, has been too much for his bullyragging methods.

It carried by an overwhelming majority.

It was agreed that every man in the caucus would abide by its decision so that this means practically the entire negro vote for gold.

After the meeting adjourned Anderson rounded up forty or fifty of his colored brothers and took them upstairs to meet the great boss from New York.

Platt was busy at the time in conference with his lieutenants over the row in the New York delegations' caucus, so the newly-pledged goldites waited for him.

They were ushered into his bedroom to await his pleasure.

Finally his private sergeant-at-arms announced that he was ready and the colored men filed in to where Tioga Tom stood awaiting them, with Anderson by his side, to introduce them.

He gave each brother a hearty grip congratulating him on his espousal of sound money.

LET NEW YORK GO. Mr. Chauncey Depew is quoted as say-ing that if the Republicans place their candidate at St. Louis on a gold standard platform, and the Democrats place their candidate at Chicago on a free silver platform, New York will go Republican by a majority of at least 250,000.

That is exactly the kind of majority that the Democrats want to see the Republicans win New York by in the coming and intend to do is to exchange the electoral vote of New York for about 100 $126,692,377. The raid was then in full force, and within the six months follow-electoral votes west of the Alleghanies, which they have heretofore been unable to obtain because of Demogratic submission to the domination of New York.

The raid was then in full force, and within the six months following, the Harrison Administration was on the point of issuing bonds to keep the gold reserve at the $100,000,000 mark.

The raid was then in full inconsistent.

If the task of meeting the demands of New York in political campaigns can be transferred to the Republicans once for all, it will be an easy job to keep that party in the minority permanently.

THURLOW WEED ON GOLD.

THURLOW WEED ON GOLD.

The Post-Dispatch reproduces from the New York Tribune a letter written in 1878 by Thurlow Weed, one of the fathers of the Republican party. Although written and printed eighteen years ago, the letter is peculiarly pertinent in its application to existing political conditions. In fact, if the date were removed and the names referred to in the letter left out, it would be assumed without question to have been written on the money question as now forced to the front in politics.

as now forced to the front in politics.

Air. Weed's letter is especially interesting as throwing light upon the progress of the campaign of education that has been kept up by the international bankers and their newspaper organs for twen-ty years past. In 1878 Mr. Weed ex-pressed surprise that the leading New York newspapers were championing the gold standard, and pointed out how dis-artrous to the Republican party had been and would be the mere threat of

What would Mr. Weed think now if he could see the party which he warned so forcibly against the dangers of the single gold standard so thoroughly committed to it that the only question in its national convention is whether or not it shall pronounce outright and unequive-cally for gold, or shall substitute some phrase that can be used to hoodwink the people.

The letter is worthy of careful perusa Spurred on by the moneyed interests of the East, the St. Louis convention will disregard Thurlow Weed and all its old-time leaders. But when the fisue is joined after the Chicago convention, Mr. Weed's letter will be a good campaign document for the Democrats.

It is impossible to have sympathy with Shaffer, but those who know that, of the two greatest bribe-takers of that session, one has been renominated to the State Senate, while the other is on the point of going to Congress, will find it hard to condemn him utterly.

In Illinois there has been a defeat of the ends of justice. The vicarious sacrifice of a small fish should not work atonement for the larger ones who slipped through the meshes. The net should be cast again and again.

east again and again.

GOLD, OR GUFF?

Here is an evidence of how politicians underestimate public intelligence. The contest now raging among Republican leaders, to be settled in the Resolutions Committee or on the floor of the convention, is whether or not the word "gold" shall go into the platform.

The free silver element in this convention is a small minority. Discussion as to the phrasing of the platform is between two sets of gold standard advocates, one favoring an honest gold.

This is a year of opportunity for the standard declaration and the other a dis-honest straddle. There is really no difference between them. Both are for gold and against silver. But while one ele-

This element should be as contemptible in numbers as it is in purpose. It wants to amegid the declaration favoring the maintenance of "the existing gold standard" by striking out the word "gold".

It evidently be the people with a demoney for gold in the St. Louis platform comes of the cowardice that fears the growing belief among the people that gold is unsound. maintenance of "the existing gold standard" by striking out the word "gold."
It evidently believes that there is a large percentage of Republicans who do not know that the existing standard is a gold standard and who would be startled learn that it is and that their party ors its maintenance. It believes that are thouseals of Republicans who was be led to think that in declaring for nobody to rush the can if there were.

These leaders ought to know their party, but the Post-Dispatch is sure they do not. They are dealing with men as nurses deal with children. They are insulting every honest and intelligent man in their party. From the standpoint of practical politics the out-and-out gold men are incomparably their superiors.

ROBBING BOTH POCKETS.

Two facts were strongly brought out by Mr. Dockery in his speech on currency contraction during the closing hours of Congress.

One is that the policy of selling bonds to maintain a gold reserve works a large contraction in the elsevie with the policy of selling bonds to maintain a gold reserve works a large pleasant." contraction in the circulating medium. In the nearly two years from July 1, 1894, to June 1, 1896, the increase in the borrowed surplus in the Treasury was $149,608,773.70. In that time the actual decrease in the volume of money in active circulation was $142,476,949.

The figures almost tally to prove that the gold standard and policy not only taxes the people for principal and interest of great bond issues, but takes out of currency large sums of money to be with-drawn for export by speculating gold and bond jobbers. Reduced to exact fig-ures, the reduction in the per capita cir-culation during that period was from

Mr. Dockery's figures prove another important fact. They show how far the raids on the gold reserve had been carried under the Harrison Administration. On July 1, 1890, the Treasury surplus was $245,612,464. A year later this had been reduced to $153,893,809. Another year, or July 1, 1892, found the surplus down to $126,692,377. The raid was then in full

These figures, official and indisputable, show that high tariffs cannot maintain gold reserves. The Harrison reserves have vanished under the McKinley law. The crat. first Cleveland bond issue was under that law, No administration can main-tain a gold reserve or a gold standard money, once in taxes and once in reduc-ing the volume of the circulation.

THE CITY'S RIGHT.

Under the decision of the Supreme Court the city's control of the conduit system is practically limitless. The rights of incorporators are clearly defined, but the supervisory powers of the city are set out with equal clearness.

The ordinance introduced by Mr. Clark granting the Sutter company, when properly incorporated, the right to operate a conduit, recognizes municipal control only to a limited extent. Sec. 5 of the proposed ordinance says:

posed ordinance says:

Said corporation, in addition to providing space for its own wires, shall provide space for the wires of any other person or persons, company or companies desiring to use such system of underground conduits, upon such reasonable terms and compensation as may be agreed upon by the respective articles. tive parties.

Such an arrangement would leave th Conduit Company in a position to create or perpetuate a monopoly. It is not only possible, but probable, that in a few only possible, but probable, that in a few years improvements in electric service will lead to the organization of new companies and great cheapening in the cost of quick communication. The people of St. Louis should be in no danger of losing the advantage of such inventions or the reduction in cost to which their introduction here would force.

The Conduit Company might exact impossible terms of applicants for the use of its property. The danger is one to be guarded against. The Supreme Court has pointed the way to the making of a legal ordinance, safeguarding alike the interests of the company, the city and the people. That way should be followed. The right of the city to prescribe terms in all cases of disagreement should be made plain.

It is Thomas Reed's own fault that he has been disappointed. He had a dream which should have warned him not to enter the contest for the Presidential nomination. He dreamed that he was seated at a great table loaded with delicious viands. Pihtes, cups, etc., were all there, but when he started to partake he found that there was no knife or fork. cussing policies. With the financial policy fixed, there is certainly no reason for discussion. The battle will be lost or won on the financial issue.

All great men should receive the gentlemen of the press as Chauncer Depew receives them. He has the acumen to perceive that when he is talking to a reporter he is not addressing a squad in a hall, but the entire country.

The country is thinking more of the silver men in this week's convention than of the gold rooters. It is curious to know weak in the spine as has been alleged.

Though Addicks has not been recognized by the convention, he should en-deavor to enjoy himself while in St. Louis. An Addicks blow-out would in-crease the gayety of the week.

The gold partisans, consisting of foreign bondhelders and American bankers, sustained by leading London and New York journals, made their first raid against silver. It was denounced as dishonest money. Its advocates were stigmatized as "Repudiators" and "Inflationists." Public epinion being largely formed and moved by the press, there was great surface unanimity against the "silver oraxe." The Bland bill, though passing the House of Representatives in an objectionable form, was properly amended in the Senate. the debt is mainly paid to our own citizens."

Can our leading journals and politicians have forgotten the political issues of 187. 'S and 1807 Then, as now, there was a wild, senseless warfare against paper money. Then President Van Buren, sustained by Col. Bentos, Silas Wright, the Washington Globe, Richmond Enquirer, Albany Argus and New Hampshire Patriot, demanded a gold currency, Col. Benton made speeches in the United States Benate declaring that "yellow boys shining through the intersices of a silken purse" must become the exclusive currency of our country. Instructions were received from Washington in favor of a law suppressing the small notes of our safety fund banks. Gov. Marcy reluctantly obeyed these instructions. In accordance with his recommendation a Demogratic Legislature prohibited our banks from issuing any note under the denomination of $6. This warfare upon paper money precipitated a financial crisis. Committees from New York and other cities visited Washington seeking relief from measures which occasioned widespread suffering among all the industrial classes. In response to these appeals the Washington organ of the Administration denied "that there was any pressure which honest men should regret." President Van Buren was credited with saying that "those who traded on borrowed capital ought to fail." The Hon. Samuel Beardsley of Oneida in a Congressional speech exclaimed: "Perish commerce, perish credit, perish all, cather than take any backward step."

The Whigs of New York boldly accepted the financial issue tendered by the Democratic National and State Administrations, Upon this issue we carried the Assembly by a large majority in 183."

History is now repeating itself, and yet tional struggle between capital and labor, the fact that the Tribune, Herald, Journal of Commerce, Evening Post, Commercial Advertiser, Express, World, etc., etc., were found standing shoulder to shoulder in favor of a single standard of value, denouncing and ridiouling all who advocated silver and gold as the standards provided by the Constitution of the United States, still "excites our special wonder." And even now, while the sliver dollar is a legal tender, these journals lose no opportunity to depreciate ft. Ours is the largest silver producing country in the world, and ours is the only mation in the world that seeks to reject one of the richest gifts of a bountful Providence. Legal tenders are not "soft money" in the offensive sense applied to them. Rebels were the first enemies of greenbacks. The condict was protracted and sangulnary, but greenbacks triumphed—as they will triumph in the present conflict. They will be good money as long as they are needed, and they will be needed until the objects for which they were created have been accomplished. Those objects were, first, to preserve the Union, and next, to aid resumption and restors prosperity. Under the auspices of the Republican Administration and party, by a wise use of gold, sliver and legal tender, the yountry and the people may confidently anticipate speedy resumption and anduring prosperity. ROBERT AND WOLZERDORF.

Will Represent the A. C. C.'s on the Track Committee. At a special meeting of the Associated Cycling Clubs, held at the South Side Clubhouse last night, D. W. Robert and H. G. Wolzendorf were elected to represent that body on the Joint Track Committee, in which the Cycle Board of Trade is the other party interested.

Messrs, Robert and Wolzendorf are well calculated to fill the places to which they were elected by vote of the A. C. C., and an immediate boom in cycle racing may be espected.

The meeting also voted that it would be the right and proper thing to co-operate with the Cycle Board of Trade in giving race meets on the De Hodiamont track. Two and possibly three first-class race meets will be given on the track during the summer.

Mr. Robison is a McKinley shouter, but he found time to talk base ball.

"I am, of course, pleased with my club," said Robison, "they are making a great showing away from home and are drawing well, but Cleveland does not support a good ball team.

"I am truly tired of the game there and don't want another year of it.

"In deference to the alleged feeling of the people of Cleveland, we did not play Sunday ball this year. We are told that if we ceased playing Sundays many people whose religious sensibilities were shocked would patronize us at home.

"Well, we didn't play Sunday ball and yet our attendance fell off instead of improving. "Now we have given it a fair trial and we propose in the future to play Sunday sames away from home.

"Cleveland has no excuse for not patronising the team. It is at the top of the column and no club in the League is playing better ball."

"Why don't you bring your team to St. Louis, Mr. Robison't Than you would have ne reason to complain of nationage." remained a bystander.

There was some hard training done at the Pastime track yesterday. All the speed merchants were out, and they put in their very best licks. The best work of the day was done by Bert Harding, who rode a half in 1:02 2-6. Considering the condition of the track, this was excellent work. Ernest Stadte is doing thirds in 40 right along. He has also developed his sprint to a point of perfection, which should often land him a winner in the fastest company.

"Ross Miler has gone stale," said an authority yesterday when the Kaneas boy failed to ride one, two, six in a soda water handicap. He is not as fast as he was last year. If he would lay off for a month and not touch a wheel it would de him a world of good.

Two feather-brained creatures, who ride a tandem and year maroon sweaters with a stag's head embroidered on the breast, are making riding on Lindell boulevard extremely dangerous. They make a practice of scorching up and down the avenue to the great discomfort of everybody. On Saturday afternoon they very nearly killed a rider on Lindell hill. The rider in question was riding west on the right side of the street. He was going down hill at a very slow gait, and at Spring avenue pulled out a little to avoid a bad crossing. The hair-brained tandemers were coming right behind like an express train, and could not or would not stop. The front wheel of the tandem just struck the pedal of the single and threw it to me side. Its rider fell, but fortunately was not hurt. If he had been a foot farther in he might have been killed. The attention of the police is called to this unseemly and dangerous scorching. It should be stopped at once. A couple of hours in jail might give some of the "hot" boys a chance to cool their heels.

Lou Coburn made a mile, paced, over the P. A. C. track in 2:06 yesterday morning. This is the fastest mile save one ever ridden on the track. That was last fall, when Murphy rode behind a quad in 2:04. The track was in much better condition then and Coburn's record is a great one considering the state of the track and the early season.

Dute Cabanne has recovered from his sickness and will be riding again in a few days. Dute will be seen on the track again this year.

TAVARES, Fla., June 15.—Mrs. Rober Gresham is dead and Mrs. Mollie Gaines i angaged near Clermont yesterday after noon. Three months ago Mrs. Gaines was a happy bride, and Mrs. Gresham, who was a happy bride, and Mrs. Gresham, who was a young widow, was her dearest friend. Saturday afternoon Mrs. Gaines learned that her husband and Mrs. Gresham had planned a meeting at the latter's home. Taking a razor with her, the young wife went and found tha couple together. Gaines fled, and his wife immediately sprang upon her rival, using the razor with awful effect. Mrs. Gresham picked up a hammer and defended herself as best she could, dealing Mrs. Gaines blow after blow on the head. Finally Mrs. Gaines reached her rival's throat with the razor, severing her jugular vein and causing almost instant death.

The names of Morton, Allison, Quay and Reed will be presented to the convention for a vote, with no other reason than to prove the delegates and State delegations loyalty.

The battle this morning is purely upon financial grounds. Maryland's delegation came to Mr. Platt's rooms early this morning and declared for a gold standard, with the word gold in the plank. This makes thirteen States that have promised to stand by Mr. Platt, New York included.

As yet Ohlo has not signified a willingness through Mr. Hanna to accept this and so sure is the latter of the control of the convention that he believes that he can either allow the Easterners to fix the plank or else use his own judgment and strike it out.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 15.-The action of local Democratic leaders in spring-ing at the lest moment the name of Senator James K. Jones for the Presidency has greatly aroused the ire of the Bland supporters, and a lively fight will, no doubt, take place on the floor of the convention next Wednesday.

The Bland people construe the movement as a scheme to prevent the convention from instructing for Bland, who has 119 in-structed votes to his credit. Mr. Harry Hill of St. Louis arrived in the city to-day in the interest of the Bland boom. Within our after his arrival he and State Senator B. D. ment if front of the Capitol Hotel out the scheme to defeat the will of the people of Arkansas.

"I serve notice right here and now," said Mr. Hill, "that the scheme to defeat Mr. Bland in your convention Wednesday wi! not work, for I do not believe Senator Jones will be a party to it. Everybody knows that Bland is the choice of the Democracy of Arkansas, and this scheme to beat him out of the State will not succeed. The 119 or more instructed delegates will soon see through the scheme and demand that justice be done Mr. Hland. I am sure the name of Senator Jones was suggested in order to prevent the convention from instructing for Bland, but as I before stated fenator Jones will not permit his name to be used in such a manner."

Senator Williams replied by saying that Arkansas was for Jones, and had no more interest in Bland's candidacy than it did in Bryan's, or Boles' or any other candidate. He realized, however, if something was not done Bland would capture the instructions from this State. This question promises to be the most interesting of the convention proceedings.

NEW YORK, June 15.—The first inkling we in the East have had as to just what to be at the convention comes from the correspondent of the Press at St. Louis, and appears in this morning's edition. He states that Temporary Chairman Fairbanks, who makes the opening speech in the convention, has submitted his manuscript to Mark Hanna, and that the views of the candidate on protection, finance and other paramount questions are clearly and satisfactorily set forth. He says:

"The speech opens with the subject which is uppermost in the minds of the people who have suffered from the evils caused by the operations of the Wilson-Gorman bill. The prosperity which existed under protection and Republicanism are ably set forth and the sudden change to the worse by Cleveland's action is clearly pictured.

"Attention is called to the excess of imports over exports, the paralysis of the American industries and the exhaustion of the gold reserve, which has made necessary an increase in the national debt for the first time since the war of the rebellion. If all this, it will be asked, occurred under a law which did not obtain Mr. Cleveland's signature because it was not sufficiently free tradish, what would have happened had a bill to Mr. Cleveland's liking been enacted?

"The relations of the revenue to the currency question are developed in a manner that will command approval. It is maintant the command approval. It is maintant to the command approval.

After stating that the speech will declare against free silver coinage, he goes on to say:

"On the question of maintaining the existing gold standard, Mr. Fairbanks' speech grows eloquent. One of the sentences runs something like this: "We must maintain the present standard of money, which has kept us abreast of the greatest commercial nations of the world." "This declaration is carried through the argument in varying forms, but always in equal positiveness. When it was shown to a leading New York banker to-night and that portion relating to the existing standard read, he asked: "Why not say gold standard instead of the present standard or the existing standard?"

"Because," was the reply, 'they mean the same thing, and if you understand it, and the people of the East understand it, what is the use of adopting a phraseology that will provoke more than half of the delegates if it should occur in the platform?" He heard the speech through and pronounced it satisfactory."

In conclusion, the correspondent adds: "On the whole, there is nothing to find fault with in what will appear as Mr. Fairbanks' declarations for the candidate and the Republican party."

At the down town hotels alone Monday morning, 4,553 persons had been accommodated for convention week. The number was being increased steadily by fresh arrivals. At the uptown hotels, including those in the West End, there were at least 2,000 more. The evening arrivals will probably double these numbers.

All rooms contracted for in advance at the Planters' Hotel are now occupied, and 1,028 guests are being fed and housed. Even with this vast army, but fifty cots are being used. They are placed in rooms.

At the Southern Hotel 700 guests have registered and 50 more are expected by Tuesday evening. About 100 cots are in use or ready for use in rooms.

At the St. Nicholas all the rooms contracted for in advance are not yet occupied, but there are 200 guests under the roof, and cots are in readiness for use as soon as the necessity arises, which will probably be on Tuesday.

The Lindell Hotel is accommodating 800 persons, of whom 200 are sleeping on cots.

After Monday's arrivals there were 575 guests at the Laclede Hotel. The management found it necessary to place 100 cods in rooms to accommodate those for whom beds could not be provided.

At Hurst's Hotel there are 600 guests, with 200 on cots. The crowd was so great Monday that it was necessary for new arrivals almost to fight their way to the clerk's desk.

The scramble for running-mate to William McKinley on the Presidential ticket is in a measure overshadowing the wrangle over the currency plank in the platform.

It is only a few sober-headed leaders that are absorbed in the phraseology of the latter, while the multiplicity of Vice-Presidential candidates has turned every State delegation into a hunting ground for votes for their favorite.

When Platt and Quay left Hanna's lieutenant who has managed the articles of a greement, it was with the implied understanding that Platt should be satisfied with the partial victory in New York, and the probability of gold in the platform.

Quay, who has been in a better position all the time, because he surrendered at a sime when conditions could be secured, insisted that Hastings should be taken up as a vice-presidential candidate.

BLAND IS THE MAN.

A Million Votes Stronger Than Any Other Democrat in the Country, Says Beriah Wilkins.

From the Globe-Democrat.

Beriah Wilkins, proprietor of the Washington Post, in the course of a conversation at the Southern yesterday with ex-Gov.

Francis and several prominent Republicans and Democrats, expressed some opinions which created much comment. Mr. Wilkins is a Democrat himself, but he publishes an Independent newspaper and takes a newspaper view of things, without much party bias. Before he, in company with the late paper view of things, without much party bias. Before he, in company with the late Frank Hatton, bought the Post, Mr. Wilkins was a prominent member of the Ohio delegation in Congress.

"Taking it for granted," said Mr. Wilkins, "that the Chicago convention will adopt a platform of 16 to 1, Bland is the logical candidate. Of course, personally, I am for Jim Campbell. He is from my State, and I am for him. But on a 18 to 1 platform Bland is the man."

"What makes you think so?" some one saked.

"What makes you think so?" some one asked.
"Because," said Mr. Wilkins, "Bland has been the devoted leader of the free silver movement from the beginning down to the present time. He was the first man to introduce and push the bill for remonetization after what Semator Stewart calls 'the crime of 1872.' He was the bitterest antagonist of the Sherman silver purchasing act, for the reason, as he said, that it would treat silver as a purchasable commodity instead of as money, a distinction that Bland has always consistently insisted upon."
"You served in Congress with him?" was suggested.

"What is your estimate of him personally?"
"Bland always impressed me as a man of marked ability and of intense honesty. I knew him intimately. I had had considerable experience in the banking business, and took more interest than I otherwise might have done in all legislation pertaining to money questions. For that reason I watched Bland's career and came to know him well. He never showed up in Congress to his full stature, because he was not social, and did not mix much with the other members, but he had the bravery to assert himself on all questions at all times."

"Do you think that he is Presidential timber?"

"Do you think that he is Presidential timber?"
"I haven't any doubt of it. Bland would make a good President."
"You are much in sympathy with his financial views?"
"No, I suppose I may be recognized as a gold man, but I blieve that Bland's nomination would emphasize this pending issue as it could not be emphasized by any other man. It would prompt the silver and gold men to put the best foot foremost on either side and settle this question. The nomination of Bland would make the silver question the overshadowing issue in this campaign."

statement, which startled some of his hearers:

"I believe that Bland would be a million votes stronger as the Democratic Presidential candidate than any other man in the United States. My own personal choice would be a more conservative gomine. I would hedge against free coinage at 16 to
1. But if this is to be the issue Bland mould be the candidate. If there are any silver men in the United States his nomination would bring them out. Bland, as a candidate, would grow. His home life, his record in Congress, his personal honesty—all these things, as they came to be discussed, would make him grow stronger."

"Will he carry Ohio?"

"That I won't undertake to say. Campbell is stronger in Ohio than any other man."

"Could Bland carry any other State east they must not put gold in the platform; if they do they will lose New Hampshire. The Republicans are going to work this thing very adroitly. They are going to try to make protection overshadow the money question.

"You don't think, then, that the Republican platform will declare for a gold standard?"

"No. The leaders are going to take gold out of the platform. The convention will declare for the existing standard."

"Do you really think, Mr. Wilkins, that Bland will be nominated at Chicago?"

"Bland has a weakness with the pooliticians which is his strength with the people. The average politician doesn't know him except by reputation. He isn't well known personally. The Southern fellows look upon him as a second-rate man. He isn't. By the time the convention meets he will be growing on the country, and will be growing on the country, and of the vigillar, where thousands of others have worn holes in the tiling. It was a case of Greek meet Greek, though, for the gentleman from Podunk was only one short lap behind and recovered the precious grip before the scared beliboy could straighten up.

"Say, young feller, that's mine," said the new arrival. "Left it alone." With that he put it on the floor, pressed both feet to register. He had, however, engaged no recemin advance, and so was cast out to do battle with more scheming beliboys and others who are lurking about with malice aforethought toward their country cousins.

Being a delegate-at-large and therefore trotting in such exalted company as that of Platt, Depew and Warner Miller, a master in the use of the snicker-snee, it became him to show that he appreciated his dizzy elevation.

He, too, had business which took him to the easy boss' room.

The reason for the New York leaders' disposition to get out of sight was that a conference on the financial plank was planned in Mr. Platt's room. Soon after the boss reached there Depew, Lauterbach, Hackett and Fassett showed up. In a short time several influential members of the Maryland delegation arrived.

They announced that they would stand by Mr. Platt's proposition to insert the word "gold" in the platform. Chairman Hackett of the New York committee said when this occurred, "Well, that's thirteen States, just as many as we started the Union with."

After the withdrawal of the delegation, Mr. Platt tacitly admitted that the issue or which New York was now fighting was rold instead of Morton. The delegation would show its loyalty to its candidates, but would make its strongest fight for the anintenance of the present gold standard. Said Mr. Platt this morning: "Gov. Morton is the gold candidate and his platform since his candidatey was promoted, as been for the use of the word 'Gold' in he platform. Therefore, if, we win this shit we shall have won a partial victory for Gov. Morton, even if he is not nominated."

Mr. Lauterbach said when asked to define the present status of the gold fight: "Why, it seems to me that we are in this position; the present in the position; the gold fight: "Why, it seems to me that we are in this position; the present in control of the convention. If we continue to gain recruits as may concede to us the honor of drafting he plank. STRAIGHT GOLD PLANK.

mand by the Minnesota Delegation at Its Meeting. The Minnesota delegation Monday came ut strong for a declaration in favor of the naintenance of the gold standard. They in-tructed ex-Gov. Merriam, the representa-ive of Minnesots on the Committee on tive of Minnesots on the Committee on Resolutions, to insist on a straight gold plank, and pledged eighteen votes of the delegation in the convention to stand by him to the end.

Representative Charles O. Towne of Minnesota is infurlated over the action of the delegation, and openly declares that in case a gold plank is placed in the platform he will stump the State for silver.

The following selections were made by the delegation: National Committeeman, ex-Gov. L. F. Hubbard; Resolutions, ex-Gov. W. R. Merriam; Credentials, W. P. Hunt; Permanent Organization, L. S. Swenson; Rules, C. L. Sanderson; Vice-President, C. F. Hendrix; Notification, Wm. McNick-bils; Chairman of the Delegation, Chas. A. Pillisbury.

CHAMPION OF THE WOMEN.

Henry B. Blackwell of Boston Will Offer a Resolution.

Henry B. Blackwell of Boston, Mass., editor of the Woman's Journal, is in St. Louis to appear before the National Convention as to appear before the National Convention as representative of the National Equal Suffrage Club. To a Post-Dispatch reporter he stated he was for McKinley and a single gold standard. Mr. Blackwell will present the following to the convention:

"To the Republican Resolutions Committee: Gentlemen—In behalf of many Republican suffragists, and in view of the fact that the women voters will vote for President and Congressmen in three States next November, I respectfully ask the adoption of the following:

"The Republican party is mindful of the rights and interests of women. Protection of American industries includes equal opportunities, equal pay for equal work and protection to the home. We favor the admission of women to wider spheres of usefulness, and welcome their co-operation in rescuing the country from Democratic mismanagement and Populist misrule."

SHE IS A REED WOMAN. Mrs. Carrie Chapman-Catt Is Solid for the Fat Statesman. Mrs. Carrie Chapman-Catt, in attendance pon the Missouri Equal Suffrage State onvention, is an ardent supporter of homas B. Reed for the Presidential nomination.

"I am for Reed, first and last," said Mrs. catt to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "but I know that McKinley will be nominated."
Mrs. Catt is also true to her New England principles in regard to a platform,
"I am for a soid standard," said she. "I favor bimetallism, but believe it impossible to secure it except by international agregment."

SILVER WILL BE HEARD.

Protection Will Be Vouched for, but It Is Overshadowed by the Demand

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Ex-Senator John J. Ingalla, the Journal's powerful special convention correspondent, furnishes another trenchant article this morning. He emphasizes the fact that the people, not an individual, will speak at the convention, and shape the future of the Republican party, and incidentally gives Senator Teller a send off.

Mr. Ingalls writes as follows:

"Political issues, like poets, are born, and not made. They grow and cannot be manufactured to order. The great political leader is not the palitry and sordid boss who packs primaries and controls delegates and, threatens to boit conventions unless he can have his selfish way, but the man who discerns the wishes and purposes of the people, and cooperates with them. This was the secret of Lincoln's consummate power. He discovered the thought of the people and gave it expression. He found out what the people wanted done, and did it. He sometimes seemed dilatory, but it was because he waited to ascertain the convictions of the people. He listened, took counsel and received suggestions, and them acted. He was a leader because he followed public opinion.

"The managers here have at last besum ceived suggestions, and then acted. He was a leader because he followed public opinion.

"The managers here have at last begun to realise that the effort to conduct this campaign upon a ready-made platform, with the tariff as the principal plank, will be futile. Protection will be the policy of the nation for an indefinite period. So far, at least, as the Republicans are concerned, free trade is no more an issue than slavery or State sovereignty. The election of McKinley and a Republican Congress everyone knows means a tariff both for revenue and protection, but what does it mean on the mency question?

"The hope that this inquiry might be subordinated, or suppressed, or tangled up with the tariff, has disappeared. Evidently our financial system will be the vital and engrossing topic of debate from this time forth, and the declaration of the convention if of supreme importance. Both parties have juggled and equivocated in the past. Promises made to the ear have been broken to the hope. It has been like a desperate cause in court, in which motions for continuance, change of venue, and to take testimony in distant lands have been filed in order to avoid trial.

"The people appear to be in earnest at Bychange.

When Chauncey M. Depew, at noon Monday, remarked to the members and their acquaintances on the floor of the Exchange that gold was gold there was thunderous approval.

The crowd went wild when the speaker added that all over the world gold was of acquaintances on the floor of the Exchange and the remarked that silver was nowhere.

Doctor remarked that silver was nowhere.
Doctor Depew, his son and niece, were the guests of the Merchants' Exchange, and in response to a request the railway magnate gave a few of his views on the financial question.

He placed himself on record for, perhaps, the hundredth time as being in favor of a gold dollar.

The persons on the floor that heard him stamped their feet, yolied and clapped their hands. Some threw their hats into the air.

When the doctor said that the only dollar which could maintain a universally uniform price was a gold dollar; the crowd knew no bounds for its joy. Men 50 years old praneed about like boys. Some baned on the shoulders of others and wept, so greatly did they rejoice, while many yelled:

"Long to dollar, the crowd knew no bounds for its joy. Men 50 years old praneed about like boys. Some baned on the shoulders of others and wept, so greatly did they rejoice, while many yelled:

"Long to repew."

The doctor made a great hit.

IOWA'S GREAT BAND.

Music-Makers From the Hawkeye State in Line for Amiscn.

The Allison boom may be dead, but Iowa is being heard from to-day in no unmistakable way, for she has a band.

It is no common jim-crow band, but the celebrated Pinney Iowa State Band of sixty-odd pieces. They struck town at the propersion of the public credit and pillorled in the metropolitan press as madmen, knaves or fools. It was said that $75,000,000 of silver might possibly be maintained at part the collegal of $75,000,000 under that estable the struct.

in the metropolitan press as madmen, knaves or fools. It was said that $75,000,000 of silver might possibly be maintained at par, but more than this would result in individual ruin, the expulsion of gold, silver monometallism and national bankruptcy. "Instead of $75,000,000 under that act and the act of 1890, more than $500,000,000 were added to the circulating medium in silver coin and silver certificates, and hone of the prophecies of evil came to pass. On the contrary, the period from 1878 to 1892, under protection and bimetallism, was marked by constant and unprecedented prosperity. The last message of President Harrison dwelt largely upon the resources and development of the country, and disclosed a condition that has had few parallels in the history of civilization. "The disasters of the past four years are too fresh in memory to require rehearsal. Such irreparable ruin in so short a space never before fell upon any people. And the downward tendency has not yet been arrested. We have not touched bottom. Times have never been so hard as now, nor money in circulation so scarce, nor prices so low, nor business so precarious, nor incomes so uncertain, nor the future so doubtful. The people who have suffered so much believe that this blast and detriment is largely due to inadequate protection and to the contraction of the currency. They may be right, or they may be wrong, but they are sincere.

"Teller of Colorado, the acknowledged apostie, leader and representative of the silver crusade, is here. His attitude is a matter of interest and importance. He is intense in his convictions, courageous and sincere. He is neither a crank, nor a freak, nor a bore. His high character and admitted qualifications make him a force to be reckoned with. He has the undivided confidence and approbation of his constituents. Whatever path he may take they will unquestionably follow him. It has been said that unless the declaration was for free and unlimited coinage, he would leave the convention and renounce his allegiance. He has

SENATOR CULLOM.

Thinks the Convention Will Declare for a Gold Standard.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 18.—Senator Shelby M. Cullom passed through Chicago en route from Canton to his home in Springfield. He said he believed the convention would adopt a "gold platform," and that it would last all week. The Senator said he would not go to St. Louis unless called to assist in the preparation of the platform.

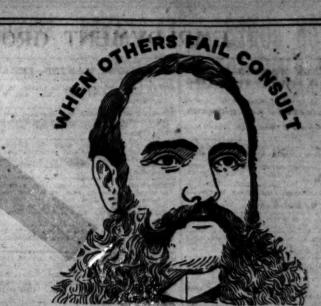

HANNA WAS WELL NAMED. Post-Dispatch Title of New Boss Is on Every Tongue. "Mark Hanna, the New Boss," is an expression which is probably more common now than any other in political circles. The phrase was originated in the Sunday Post-Dispatch in an article on the recently famous Ohioan.

Every one seems to accept the Post-Dispatch headline, and even Hanna smiled when he gianced over the story telling of his conquests.

Most of the more prominent politicians in the country have come to look upon Hanna as the new boss, the man who can make a presidential possibility, the one who can command a thousand men to the one end of making a presidential candidate of Mc-

Both Conditions Can Be Acquired.

The same foundation must be laid to build upon to reach the two conditions, vis.; Strength and Beauty; and that foundation is health; with health the mind teems with vivacity and freshness, the body is active and strong, and both the physical and mental being are alive to and in touch with everything which makes life bright, joyous and happy.

Alarming Facts.

Distressing Thoughts. It is an alarming fact that three-fourths of the men are lost to all the attributes which make the strong, brave and noble man. They are prematurely old and diseased through excesses or unnatural strains which sap the fountains of life, destroy the health and strength, and finally result apphysical wreck. These poor victims, loaded with disease, remorse and humiliation, silently suffer on, going from bad to worse, until death closes the sad scene. Muscular strongth and manly power are both which every woman desires, she, with lently suffer on, going from bad to worse, until death closes the sad scene. Muscular strength and manly power are both based upon the one condition, and that condition is health. With health all the essential organs of the body are capable of performing their functions properly, producing mental brightness, manly vigor and muscular power. Disease robs the blood of its richness, tears down the constitution and destroys the mental as well as the health. With the great love for sainty which every woman desires, she, with paints, powders and lotions, tries in value for cover up the lines and defects which the cruel work of disease has wrought in her once beautiful face. There is but one foundation for beauty, and that is health, Health produces a mind teeming with with the bright, sparkling eye, the rosy cheek and the plump and well-rounded form, With health the whole world is a world of sunshine. NEW YORK, June 15.—The stock market opened strong and active, with gains of sharp fractions in the international shares. Sugar was the feature of the speculation, and on heavy dealings rose 1½ per cent, ex-dividend. Burlington. Northwest and Manhattan were conspicuous for gains of a point. Some further improvements on the leading shorts were scored after 10:15, including: 1 per cent in Lake Shore. N.-w York Central and Lake Erie & Western preferred. Around 103 there were some slight fractional concessions under realizing sales, but the market at 11 o'clock was steady.

The London quotations for Americans were fractionally higher all around and a resumption of ilberal purchases by the foreign hones was noted. EQUAL SUFFRAGISTS DO NOT AGREE ON A HARMONY PLANK.

Other While Trying to Organize-ion of the Missouri Equal Suffrage Associa-ion congregated in Central Christian Thurch at 10 o'clock Monday morning to hold the first session. Within fifteen min-utes a fight in progress in which the pounding of umbrellas upon the floor, hisses and cries of "shame," "shame," ningled until all prospects of transactions usiness had vanished. During the tumult Mrs. Carrie Chapman novement, and Henry B. Blackwell, widow failure to hold a Missouri convention last year.

Miss Anthony had been very indignant that the association had been permitted to die. The point had been made that the present association was without a constitution and by-laws. If so, it should follow precedent. The election of temporary officers was irregular because Mrs. Johnson was President of the association.

"If you don't want Mrs. Johnson to preside," concluded Mrs. Catt, "a motion should be made to that effect. But Mrs. Johnson should preside. If you are dissatisfied with her rulings you may appeal from the chair, and she can be made to do right. But you should have faith in Mrs. Johnson. The time to impeach is after a permanent organization has been effected. I have already presented a plan of compromise to the Business Committee of the association, which I will make known later."

and stated that she was sure the trouble was all a misunderstanding.

"I see here but one member of the old Suffrage Club, Mrs. Patrich," declared Mrs. Ingalis.

Three ladies called attention to themselves as exceptions to this assertion, and before Mrs. Ingalis could resume Mrs. Whitney very emphatically made the point of order that the question before the house was not what had been, but what was to be, and that any person speaking twice on the same subject, as Mrs. Ingalis was doing, was clearly out of order.

Mrs. Johnson overruled Mrs. Whitney, whose delegation had applauded her, and who promptly appealed from the Chair. Mrs. Whitney tried to present her case, but was drowned by cries of "Mrs. Ingalis" "The latter tried to resume her remarks, and Mrs. Whitney and Mrs. Ingalis addressed the convention together for a few minutes. When Mrs. Mna Meriwether could make herself heard she tried to demonstrate that Mrs. Ingalis was speaking to the motion and asked Mrs. Whitney why she objected to the present officers and whether they had committed any crimes.

Mrs. Whitney tried to reply, but Mrs. Johnson ordered her to take her seat. Before Mrs. Whitney could get back at Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Ingalis resumed her remarks by declaring that she had not thought St. Louis ladies could be so rude as they had proved themselves.

"I call Mrs. Ingalis to order for personal abose if the Chair does not?" cried Mrs. Whitney. "She is abusing the women of this convention?"

"Question?" "Question!" rang out from all parts of the convention. No one remembered just then what the question was and Mrs. Ingalis went on to say:

"Talled the old Suffrage Association to order. You would not have had an association now had it not been for me."

"Wrs. Ingalis, please take your seat!" cried Mrs. Johnson from the chair.

Mrs. Ingalis started to comply and Mrs. Gilbert of St. Joseph pounded on the floor with her umbrella, while the tumult swelled all around. In the midst of the excitement, Mrs. Mrs. Ingalis started to convention also greeted Mr

SCENES AT UNION STATION.

Uniform Organizations Arriving on Nearly Every Train-Will Be a Big Parade To-Night.

In a burst of enthusiasm and a whirl of ent convention week has opened. Day by day the long pent-up feelings of the workers and rooters have asserted themselves more and more strongly until now the spirit of the occasion is in the very air. The anticipations of the visitors are being realized, and those who have arrived within the past few days have found a city in gala attire and given over heart and soul to the work of making the convention of 1896 an occasion to be recalled with leasant recollections in the years to come. No herald is needed to announce from the No herald is needed to announce from the housetops the fact that a momentous event in the history of the Republican party and of the country is about to take place. The crowds in the hotels and in the streets, the decorations on the front of buildings, the decorations of marching clubs, and the ever present air-splitting brass bands, bespeak more eloquently than words the gala character of the weak that is being ushered in. On the streets, away from the committee bons, where the workers are busy, and the festive side of the big event is apparent.

After all this will be the side which will appeal most strongly the great bulk of the convention crowd.

Thouselfula who will be here will be neither defigures, after the nor rooters, but mere brief season of pageantry which always accompanies a National Convention.

For them it is all a show monstrous in its proportions and marvelous in its features, but always a show and nothing more. They could go far before they would find a more gorgeous spectacle than St. Louis is now affording.

Everywhere there is the flutter of bunting, the waving of flags and the brightness of streamers bearing the likeness of men who would fain be President. The bands are everywhere and the marching clubs are beginning to arrive in swarms. usetops the fact that a momentous event

Union Station is crowded at all hours with throngs of surging, pushing, tugging yet good-natured humanity. Within the big enclosure there is the sound of many voices, a sound that even the clanging of locemotive bells in the immense shed, and the blatant strains of brass bands outsife cannot drown. Here is a group of President-makers, sleek, shrewd, prosperovs-looking men, and there behind them, their faces beaming with delight comes a little party of visitors from the country. They jostle the President-makers and the President-makers jostle somebody else, and so they make their way chaffing and smiling out into the streets which are less congested than the midway. Union Station is crowded at all hours with their way chaffing and smiling out into the streets which are less congested than the midway.

Though the greatest rush is in the morning and the evening hours the big station never quite loses its kaleidoscopic aspect. The variety of the bidges, buttons and medallons worm would in themselves lend a touch of color to the scene even were they not supplemented by the gorgeous trapping of the marching clubs and the brilliant toliets of the women.

The clubs which will cut so great a figure in the spectacle of the week have nearly all arrived.

rorseous trapping of the marching clubs and the brilliant toliets of the women. The clubs which will cut so great a figure in the spectacle of the week have nearly all arrived.

Swellest of them all is the Union Republican Club of Philadelphia, which got in Sunday. The members are all wealthy business men, and at Union Station Sunday the looked as if they had just stepped out of 160 bandboxes. With a drum corps at their head they marched down the midway as best they could, the observed of all observers, President A. S. L. Shields was at the head of the imposing body.

A club that will attrace a great deal of attention is the Alexander Crow Club of Philadelphia, which came as an escort to Alexander Crow, Jr., who will represent the Fourth Pennsylvania Districe in the convention. Their uniform is of gray, with hat to match, and red kid gloves. The distinctive feature which will capture the crowds will be their umbrellas. Each man carries a canary-colored umbrella, surmounted by a stuffed crow.

Baltimore sends two clubs which can be relied upon to furnish their share of the general excitement. These are the Young Men's Republican Club, 75 members, and the Columbian Club, 35 members, and the Columbian Club, 36 members, and the Columbian Club, 37 members, and the Columbian thusiasm.

The McKinley League of New York, 200 strong, came in headed by John E. Milholland, and the Reed Club of Maine is expected to-day.

All these clubs will take part in the big parade Wednesday night. This will be the big feature of the week. There will be la.600 men in line in 12 divisions, under direction of Gen. James C. Howe of Newton, who has issued the following:

She climbed the pole and launched forth upon the straight and fearfully narrow pathway. In the center she paused and started to give an exhibition of her ability.

She jumped upward and came down with her feet apart to do the "split." The strain was too much for the wire and it snapped like a rotten cord.

The woman shot downward thirty-five feet, and the sound of her body striking the earth horrified the crowd. For a moment no one moved. Then william Cook, the woman's husband, ran to her. Others crowded around, expecting to see a crushed and mangled corpse. She was unconscious but still alive, and an ambulance was called. She was moved to the City Hospital.

Special ic The Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, June 15.—Murat Halstead, one of the Journal's distinguished coterie of special convention writers, contributes his position of an interviewer himself and did not care to express any opinion on the situation.

He asked numerous questions in regard to the local feeling, the politics and attitude of the different newspapers, and if the number of visitors so far had come up to expectations. He would not say who he thought would be the nominee or what the platform would be, as he said that all he knew was what he had seen in the newspapers of the East, and he did not think that sufficient on which to base an intelligible opinion.

When asked what the result would be on a gold and silver issue, he replied that he could honestly asy that he was not in a possible of the possible say, that he was not in a possible of the possible say, the presidential nomination of McKinley, and the fact is not disputed except by the irrational, he impression grows that there is so much serious work to do that the sessions may occupy several days. The Presidential nomination can hardly take place on the first day, because there is no disposition of those having the power to be hurried in its exercise. If there are any susceptibilities to soothe, the element of time is of recognized usefulness. The nomination of McKinley will probably take place wednesday afternoon, and I should think of the Vice President on the following day, the final adjournment occur-on which to base an intelligible opinion.

When asked what the result would be on a gold and silver issue, he replied that he could honestly say that he was not in a position to express himself on even that subject, as he had not yet felt the pulse of the West, and that one of the principal objects of his visit to this city was for that purpose. He asked particularly in regard to the Post-Dispatch, saying that he had noticed the great educational work it was doing, and that the first man he would interview in this city would be Col. Jones.

On the subject of the Single Tax he was equally reticent. Almost unconsciously he stated that that was the only proper method of taxation and that the effect of free trade would and could never be felt until it was adopted. He said that this would be the greatest campaign since the election of Lincoln in 1860, as the people had gotten tired of fighting for spoils and that the fight would now be for principle and that that principle, presumably the gold and silver issue, was of the greatest importance to the successful inception and continuation of economic government.

His great regret was the apathy of the masses to inquire into the relative importance of the different systems now before them for adoption, and he ascribed that parity to the fact that the great number of allens who formed the working and voting population, came from countries where people are raised to be satisfied with little, and that the American spirit of progress had not yet been inculcated into them sufficiently to make them attempt a betterment of their condition.

It was supposed that one of the Hoffman cases would be taken up in Judge Valliant's division Monday, but the attorneys agreed with the Judge that the case should not be hastily tried. It involves the setting aside of $13,000 in judgments obtained by Mrs. Hoffman against the estate, and such a suit could not be properly tried in the week which the court had at its disposal. The parties therefore agreed to a setting in October.

Convention is already committed to opposition of this sentiment and the Senator is perturbed.

The Senator is a charming conversationalist up in the weather, the parades, the city, Mother Goose and a thousand other topics, but really he must be excused from balking South Dakoat polities. Yet he knows one thing—the party in South Dakoat is out-and-out in favor of silver. He cannot say how the delegation will vote on this proposition. He cannot say that he will bob. He cannot say that he will bob. He cannot say that he will not bolt. He does not know who will be National Committeeman from his State. However, he is, and has always been, charmed by St. Louis.

Senazor Pettigrew has a hard fight on with A. B. Kittridge of Sioux Falls, the present National Committeeman. It is his present ambition to secure the place of honor now held by Mr. Kittridge. His delegation, in the main, is commonly reported to be in line with the probable action of the convention, but despite this opposition to his own views, the South Dakota Senator will my for place with the other Sloux Falls men.

The motorman, Herman Smith, applied the brakes and stopped the car before the rear truck had left the rails more than a foot and a half.

There was considerable excitement among the passengers. Miss Patti Reithel, of 2349 Madison street, jumped from her seat immediately upon the wheels leaving the rail, and the car stopped so suddenly that she was thrown against the seat in front and the brass rail cut a small gash over her left eye.

Mrs. Dennis O'Meara of 1924 Division street was thrown from her seat to the aisle, and was severely shaken.

The Injured women were cared for by Mr. S. D. Romans, whose residence is near the curve, until the car was got back on the track. Then they were brought into the city. From the car the Suburban company had them taken to their homes in carriages.
